Construction began in 1984 and involved more than 100,000 people, including thousands of workers and soldiers.

We will then have the opportunity to visit Ceaușescu's former residence, where we can discover the private world of Romania's former dictator and his wife, Elena. The beautifully preserved villa features lavish rooms, original furnishings and personal belongings, offering a fascinating insight into life during the communist era.

Our day continues with a visit to the Village Museum, beautifully situated on the shores of Lake Herăstrău in the heart of Bucharest.

This open-air museum brings together traditional houses, churches, mills and other buildings from different regions of Romania, dating from the 17th century to the early 20th century.
